Daniel takes instructions in a wide range of personal injury and clinical negligence matters, acting for both claimants and defendants, with a particular focus on cases involving serious injuries.

Daniel joined Chambers in October 2021 following the successful completion of his pupillage under the supervision of Kane Simons.

Daniel has a broad multi track practice. Daniel has been instructed to act in cases involving traumatic brain injuries, serious psychological injuries, fatal accidents, chronic pain conditions and complex orthopaedic injuries, amongst others. He usually acts in cases where the pleaded value is between £100,000 and £1,000,000. He has been ranked as a 'Rising Star' in the 2025 and 2026 editions of the Legal 500.

Daniel accepts instructions on a CFA basis where appropriate.

Daniel completed his undergraduate education at Newcastle University, graduating with a First Class degree in Law. During his time here, Daniel represented Newcastle University at a national level in mooting and won the English Speaking Union-Essex Court Chambers national mooting competition. He subsequently received two scholarships to study the BPTC as part of a Masters degree in law at BPP University. Daniel was graded Outstanding on the BPTC and received a Distinction in his Masters overall.
