“[Mr Murray] has said all and more that could be said in respect of all points. [His] advocacy has been focused, robust, thoughtful, on point, and of great benefit to me and I am grateful”.

HHJ Sharpe sitting as a Deputy High Court Judge - June 2025

“... [the judge's] approach has come under attack by Mr Murray ...
... for he has subjected the Act and the facts of this case to penetrating analysis.”

Lord Justice Ward (Appeal allowed)

“You not only [advance your client's case] but you do that, if I may say so, with great charm, great courtesy and great skill.

“the one thing the lay client can at least say is that [Mr Murray] has conducted the matter with courtesy, dignity and proportionality”.

Her Honour Judge de Haas QC - Dec 2017

“This hearing was remarkable for the calmness and good humour in which it was conducted both by Counsel and by the parties... ...compared to many trials, it was made much quicker and easier by the demeanour of all concerned and I thank them for that”.

District Judge Conway - Sep 2019

“The Court wishes then to express its gratitude to each of the advocates in this Final Hearing for the exceptional care and skill taken in presenting the parties' respective positions, for their professional and thorough yet sensitive approach”

HHJ Middleton-Ray - Feb 2021

Known for his robust and thorough approach to cases, Stephen originally pursued a career with the Derbyshire Constabulary. After two years in the police service he left to go to university; graduated with a law degree from Leicester University in 1985 and was called to the Bar in 1986 by Inner Temple having come in the top 8% in the Bar Finals and won two separate scholarships.

In his early years at the Bar, Stephen had a mixed common law practice. For many years now Stephen has specialised in matrimonial finance (with a particular emphasis on complex financial remedy cases for high net worth clients involving issues such as trusts and company valuations) and related fields, particularly applications under the Inheritance (Provision for Family and Dependents) Act 1975 and cohabitation disputes. He is known for his meticulous attention to detail and thorough grasp of the law and rules of procedure. As an advocate, both written and orally, he is highly regarded and recommended by leading independent legal directories.

Stephen enjoys and continues to accept instructions in private law children cases. He also represents clients at Private FDR hearings and is available to sit as a Barrister Judge.
